

The commercial failures during the past week have been 293.

The southern ticket of Hendricks and Hill does not seem to "catch on" in the north.

If the republicans of New York want to gain more than one important point, they should see that Roscoe Conkling is in the front rank of the party in that state.

It is about time that no more professional attendance should be done at John McCullough's expense. The sturdy old Roman actor is in his grave, and there let him peacefully rest.

Colonel Ingerson has moved to New York, where he and his family will hereafter live. He has "worked" Washington dry, though converting nobody, and now thinks there is money in New York. As a missionary the colonel is not a success.

The only way the administration can win respect which is due and honor, is to announce heretofore that "officials" will be removed because they are republicans and appointed because they are democrats. There would be no humbug about this, and the people would honor the president for being candid if not for being wise.

Recently the Buffalo Courier introduced a telegram which it copied from the St. Louis Democrat, with the headline, "Why negroes become democrats." To which the New York Tribune answers: The question is well fitted to pair with the question, Why Canary Birds Love Tom Cals. It takes a tremendous love-extraneous pressure to make a canary bird love a tom cat.

With the election of Mitchell in Oregon makes the United States senate stand: republicans 40, democrats 34, readjusters 2. This will be the senatorial situation until 1887, unless there are deaths or resignations in the body. In 1887 there will be senators elected from California, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Indiana, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, Virginia, West Virginia and Wisconsin. Some of these states will elect senators this winter, but none of the new members will take their seats until 1887.

Upon good authority it is said, that the estimate of the cotton crop of this year, made two months ago was too high. That estimate was that the crop would exceed 7,000,000 bales. The National Cotton Exchange, in a recent report, places the amount of the crop at 6,650,000 bales. This is the largest, with two exceptions ever grown, and greater by half a million bales than the average for the last five years. The total acreage devoted to cotton in the Southern States is placed at 17,714,400 acres. Texas shows the greatest crop ever grown in a single state, her product this year being 1,493,525 bales. These figures prove some old prophecies to have been wide of the truth. The cotton lands are not abandoned and are not running to waste. Free labor raises cotton, and every bale grown now in the United States is the product of free-labor. Manufacturers, too, are springing up in the cotton states and are said to be flourishing.

The third and fourth class postmasters are to hold a convention in Chicago next week, and will discuss the question of a change in the postal law which empowers them to furnish their own offices, pay for their own fuel, and so on. The first and second class postmasters who have reasonably good salaries, have offices furnished them, and the government must pay all the expenses including clerk hire; but the third and fourth class postmasters whose salaries range from $1 to $1,100, are forced to hire their own building, pay the entire expense in keeping it warm in winter, and are also bound to provide their own furniture and boxes, and turn the proceeds from the latter over to the government. This is an outrage on the third and fourth class postmasters, especially in view of the fact that they have to do more work, as a rule, than the postmasters of the other classes whose salaries are abundantly large. The sympathies of the people are with the postmasters of the third and fourth grades, and congress should give them a fair chance to make a living out of their offices and not force them to pay out most of it for expenses which the government ought, in common justice, to pay itself.

To build a university with private money is a good thing, but to give it a wrong name overcomes the good effects of the hundreds of thousands of dollars spent upon it. Senator Stanford, of California, spent over a million dollars in founding a university in that state, and he has named it "The Leland Stanford Jr. university." This is unfortunate for the millionaire senator, because the name of his deceased son being connected with a university in that fashion, is ridiculous. Young Stanford died a year or two ago. He was not a son that a father might be proud of, and to perpetuate his memory in the building of a university is a piece of work that common sense and modesty can never perform. When the boy's funeral was held, the father, to make the occasion as imposing as possible, and to secure the most eloquent oration within reach, gave the Rev. Dr. J. P. Newman $10,000 to deliver the eulogy. He did it to order and pleased his task-master well, but the discourse was a shame to the name and fame of such a fine orator as Dr. Newman. Not content with that bombastic eulogy as a monument to the son, the father now erects a costly university which makes the matter worse.

BRAGG AND THE ADMINISTRATION.

General Bragg is not meeting with marked success in supplying his special friends with offices. Once in a while to plants one of his workers in an office, but as a rule the administration does not give him much encouragement in his attempts to distribute the patronage in his district. Probably this is owing to the irrepressible conflict now going on between Postmaster General Vilas and Congressman Bragg. If it does appear that the little general is snubbed by the administration, the snub has no doubt been willfully by the postmaster general. But however that may be, it is quite evident that Vilas and Bragg do not pull together in the same harness, and that the administration doesn't love Bragg "for the reasons he has made."

The New York Star is closer to the heart of the administration than any other paper in New York. It is edited by Mr. Dorsheimer formerly a neighbor of the president when he lived in Buffalo. He wrote the president's biography last summer, and after Mr. Cleveland got the white house he made haste to appoint Mr. Dorsheimer, district attorney. Then became the editor of the reconstructed and reorganized Star, and the other day, when defending Tammany—because the Star is a Tammany organ—he said "God, totally."

This determination to slaughter Tammany was not made when the last national convention met, and it was the foot weapon of Bragg of Wisconsin, a more bitter foe of the south than most republicans, rather than any invidious hostility to Mr. Cleveland personally, that alienated Tammany and opened democratic success in the last presidential election.

This is the spirit of the administration toward the little Bragg-adoles which is giving the Wisconsin democrats some trouble, especially the postmaster general. For a while General Bragg was riding on the topmost wave of popularity for the slab he gave Tammany in the national convention when he said, "two love him (Cleveland) for the enemies he has made." It made the exposition building fairly tremble so loud was the applause, and the telegraph bore the words all over the country, and the general was a hero. But a change came. The president and Tammany were united, and then came the hostility of the administration toward Bragg. The president could not serve Tammany and honor Bragg, and he decided to serve Tammany.

THE SENATE AND THE PRESIDENT.

Such republican senators as are unalterably opposed to President Cleveland's nominations to federal office, or any of them, will be asked to state their objections privately to the president before congress convenes, in order that he may determine whether the nominations complained of shall be withdrawn. The president expects that the nominations which he sends to the senate will not be opposed on partisan grounds, or otherwise except for cause. And for the sake of peace, it is not improbable that he will consent to withdraw such as threaten to provoke organized republican opposition.—Evening Wisconsin.

This is undoubtedly a fair view to take on the question of confirming the appointments of President Cleveland; and yet he has made some appointments that republican senators will have just ground to oppose, and for this reason: The president made loud promises that his would be a "business administration," that no one holding a prominent and responsible position of profit and trust would be removed unless for offensive partisanship or faithlessness and inefficiency in the discharge of public duties. Upon this rock of business and common sense, the president claimed to plant his administration, and all good citizens said that was right. But how did the president keep his promise? The pressure for office by democrats was too great for the president to withstand and it was not long before he began to disregard his promise. He did reappoint Mr. Pearson, a republican postmaster of New York city, ostensibly to please the independent, but really because the democratic candidates for the office were bitterly hostile toward each other, and no compromise could be made.

But take the case of Mr. Huidkoper, postmaster of Philadelphia, who was recently removed. Like Mr. Pearson, he was almost a matchless man in his place. He was reappointed less than a year ago because of his meritorious and perfect service, and in accordance with a unanimous public wish. As a reformer in the public service no man could be more thorough, true and unselfish, and no man could be less offensively partisan, and yet Congressman Randall wanted the Philadelphia post office for one of his "worse," and the president gave it to him. The president's writer and spoken pledges were swept aside, and for party reason and under promise of party work, Mr. Randall was able to control the office. Of course it will be quite natural for the senate to inquire what sort of reform this is, and why Mr. Huidkoper was removed. There are a good many removals of the same kind, and unquestionably the republican senators will not be in haste to confirm the nominees to fill vacancies made by such unjustifiable removals.

It is not likely that republican senators will enter into a crusade against the president. Common sense will teach them that it is not wise to do so. Every nomination should be considered on its merits, and when so considered, the republican party will be all the stronger, and will show to the people that it is not a party for spoils and nothing else. The Gazette does not anticipate that there will be any serious trouble between the president and the senate, but it does expect that it will defend the official honor of those who have been removed from office on trumped-up charges of offensive partisanship.

FIVE WOMEN ROASTED

HORRIBLE DISASTER AT SANDUSKY, OHIO.

The County Infirmary Destroyed and Five of the inmates Perish—Deadly Boiler Explosion with Probable Loss of Five Other Lives.

SANDUSKY, Ohio, Nov. 21.—The main building of the Erie county infirmary was burned Friday night, and five of the ninety-eight inmates of the institution perished in the flames. The names of the dead are: Mrs. Newcomb, of Berlin Heights; Mary Miller, May Upp, Mrs. Scheffer, Mary Latche, all of Sandusky.

While endeavoring to save the inmates, Superintendent Motry was injured, and now lies in a precarious condition. The money loss is estimated between $15,000 and $20,000. The building was insured.

The fire broke out in one of the upper rooms in the northwest wing of the institution at about 7:30 o'clock, originating, it is supposed, from a defective flue. The flames spread with great rapidity, and, as there were no facilities for the extinguishment of the fire, the whole upper part of the building was soon a mass of flames. An alarm was sent to this city as soon as possible, and the firemen responded promptly. The nearest supply of water was in a creek about a quarter of a mile from the institution. A line of hose was speedily laid and a stream was soon playing on the flames. In the meantime a large crowd had gathered and worked hard to rescue the inmates and save the household effects. All were gotten out except the five unfortunate named above, who were in the insane department, which was located in that portion of the building where the fire originated. Two inmates who were rescued were placed in the stable and made as comfortable as possible. Superintendent Motry was carried to a house near by, where he lies unconscious. His injuries are internal.

The firemen, finding that they could not save the main structure, directed their efforts toward saving the men's department, a smaller building immediately in the rear. The building escaped without damage, and after the fire the inmates were removed into it from the stable.

AIR-FLIGHT OF A BOILER

And Great Loss of Life Thereby—Five or Six Fatalities Probable.

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 21.—A frightful boiler explosion took place at Rock Point, near Rockport, Spencer county, Friday afternoon, at 2 o'clock in which two persons were instantly killed and several others injured. The mill in which the accident occurred had just been completed and the boiler, which was situated in the north end of the building, was being tested when it exploded, passing through the mill-room and walls of the building, thence through a brick store-room, where it struck Mrs. McLaughlin, wife of the proprietor of the mill, killing her instantly. Passing out of this building, it crossed the street and went through a blacksmith-shop owned by Mr. Fisher, who was at work in his shop. The boiler struck and killed him, passed through the rear end of the building in its wild career going through a barn, and then striking a large tree breaking it off some distance above the ground. J. T. McKinnon, the store-keeper; Lewis Bennett, Sabon Jones, Henry Jones and William Hildebrand were all badly scalded. The first three are thought to be fatally injured. Hildebrand cannot live. The damage to the building is estimated to be $3,000 or $5,000. The mill was the property of Sam F. McLaughlin.

All Three Went into the Sea.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21.—News was received here Friday afternoon after the schooner Capt. John Abbott, Robert Trainor, mate, and Patrick Tully, seaman, all of the schooner John Nickolls, and residents of Baltimore, were drowned off Rock Point in the Chesapeake Bay. Investigation shows that Tully, who was slightly intoxicated, was enticed by Capt. Abbott to leave the deck of the vessel as there was danger of his going overboard with a barrel of oil. A heavy wind was blowing at the time. Trainor went to Tully's assistance. The latter took hold of Trainor's collar and playfully gave him a pull. A larval of the ship went down against Capt. Abbott, who was standing nearby, and all three went overboard, drowning before a boat could be lowered.

Mary Makes a Good Thing of It.

BIRMINGHAM, Conn., Nov. 21.—Mrs. Charlotte C. Canfield-Baldwin, a bride only eight months ago and aged about 30, while her husband is only 22, is weary of her darling's ways. She says she cannot stand him any longer, and she has decided to leave him for a divorce, but will not do so on his promise to be true. The old lady, however, decided that property to a niece, Fanny L. Jones, of Cambridgeport. Harry and his friends applied for a conservator, and W. J. Clark was appointed. He reports that Mrs. Canfield is insane. Harry will thus get the property, at last, if this is proved.

Connors guarantees Sullivan $100,000 for a year, the contract to commence at the expiration of Sullivan's agreement with Lester & Allen next February.

It is considered that bread made from unadulterated Graham Flour is more healthful and nutritious than any other bread. It is made from the best of the wheat, from which the hull, bran and germ are removed, and the wheat is then ground in a special mill, and the flour is then sifted and packed in 40 lb. barrels.

HE LAUGHS BEST

WHO LAUGHS LAST, AND BULGARIA IS SMILING NOW.

Appearances Indicate That Servia Has Taken Too Large a Contract—An Important Conference in London.

London, Nov. 21.—Upon receipt of Prince Alexander's call for volunteers for the defense of the country, great acclamations were uttered from the British press. Nothing could more clearly show the satisfaction of the people of Eastern Roumelia with the Bulgarian union than the alacrity of their response to the call to arms. This evidence of a truly national spirit, together with the moral effect of the recent Bulgarian victories on the frontier, have given Prince Alexander's government a prestige which it has hitherto entirely lacked in the eyes of European diplomats. It would reduce the Servian stage the invasion of Bulgaria may be pronounced a failure. At last accounts the Bulgarians still held the place. One report says the Servians have raised the siege, but this lacks full confirmation. The Roumelian contingent is expected to arrive at Sofia on Sunday or Monday, and it is believed that place will then be strongly garrisoned. King Milan succeeds in penetrating the advance forces of Prince Alexander, now moved to gallant resistance by their victory.

Prince Alexander's recent appeal to the Sultan for aid turns out to have been misunderstood. Instead of an appeal for protection against Servia it was a formal demand upon Turkey to carry out the provisions of the Berlin treaty and prevent Russia from trespassing upon Bulgarian soil. This was in view of the massing of Russian troops on the frontier, a movement which is still reported to be in progress, and which, taken in conjunction with similar movements on the part of Austria, is the most ominous feature of the present situation.

VIENNA, Nov. 21.—The Servian officials at Belgrade admit that the recent encounters with the Bulgarians at Slivnitza, Slivnitza and Glinitsa resulted disastrously to the Servians. The news of these defeats has had a depressing effect upon the people and the inhabitants of Belgrade are panic-stricken. Additional proof of the gravity of the Servian situation is furnished by the fact that the siege of Widin has been raised, and Gen. Leschinska, with his army, is marching with all possible speed to the assistance of King Milan.

The Telegraph's special correspondent at Belgrade has succeeded in evading the Servian press censorship by sending a dispatch from the Serbian frontier, three miles northwest of the Servian capital. He says the defeat of the Servians at Slivnitza and Slivnitza was due to inadequate preparation, which enabled the Bulgarians to approach without discovery, and to capture the Servian army without any loss of men or material. He also states that the Bulgarians are now in possession of the city of Widin, and that the Servian army is now in a state of panic.

The Times has information that King Milan's advisers have concluded him to offer a proposition for immediate peace, whether Sofia falls into the hands of the Servians or not. The paper says that the terms upon which peace shall be declared will probably be arranged next week.

Trying to Muzzle the War Dogs.

New York, Nov. 21.—A London cablegram to The Sun says: Political and diplomatic circles are all agog over an important conference which was held at the foreign office Friday afternoon. Lord Salisbury presided, and the conference was attended by the British ambassador at Constantinople, Mr. H. B. Hall, the German ambassador at London, Mr. Waddington, the French ambassador at London, and the Russian ambassador at London, Mr. Giers. The general opinion is that the conference was a success, and that the terms upon which peace shall be declared will probably be arranged next week.

At the Gates of Mandaly.

London, Nov. 21.—The foreign office has received notification from Gen. Freudenreich, in charge of the British troops in Armenia, that upon reaching the vicinity of the capital, Mandaly, he issued the proclamation customary in the case of such invasions, informing the people that the army had come to protect them from misrule and oppression, and that they were to be treated as British subjects. The formal demand upon King Theobald for the surrender of Mandaly and submission to the British forces has also been made. The answer had not been received at the time of forwarding the foregoing information.
